1980s in Context of other RAF cadet training systems

A Personal Recollection of IOT

Kindly donated by Gp Capt Rob O'Dell

IOT* as a whole consisted of four 'main sqns' assigned sequentially to IOTs, starting every six weeks (eg C Sqn 100 IOT was followed by D Sqn 101 IOT); PIOT*s would start 4 weeks prior to the 'main course.' Each sqn wore different coloured cravats when in combat kit and had the same coloured stripe on their white cadet shoulder flashes, and a thin stripe on their 'Thunderbird jacket' and No 1 collar flashes.

A Sqn, red.

B Sqn, yellow (B was known universally as an 'Easy' sqn whose standards were lower than everyone else's!)

C Sqn, blue (note the cravats and shoulder flashes in Slide 76).

D Sqn, green. D Sqn was also known as 'D for Death' Sqn and was notorious for giving their students a hard time and expecting much higher standards (for instance, D Sqn cadets had to bull the whole of their DMS boots despite this increasing the risk of tendonitis. The other sqns only had to bull toecaps!).

Supporting these main sqns were:

Recourse or 'R' Sqn who wore purple. Students were recoursed at the end of their main course and underwent a further six weeks of training under a formal syllabus designed to address their specific areas of weakness (normally leadership related). This was different to those students 'back-squadroned' earlier in the course for academic or behaviour issues.

Med Holding Flt wore white. Students were sent to MHF to recover from injuries which precluded them continuing what was a physically demanding IOTC at the time. When I was at Cranwell, MHF probably had 30+ studies with various injuries, many of whom were undergoing physio. They were often, somewhat unkindly, referred to as 'LMF'!

Specialist Entrant and Re-Entrant (SERE) This was a six-week short course for recruits destined for 'specialist' branches (eg Legal, Medical, PMRAFNS and Dental) and those re-entering the RAF or transferring from another Service. Their course was run separately to the main IOTC but they graduated alongside their related IOTC. Although known as a 'knife/fork/spoon course', SERE guys graduated at flt Lt or even sqn ldr rank, as is still the case.

*IOT is Initial Officer Training; PIOT a short-lived Pre-IOT course between 1985 and 1987
